Mapping the World

Influential maps and how they have shaped our views

Aidan Liggins

New Headingley Club, St Michael's Road / 7.30pm

'You usually cannot own what you cannot see' - Dorling & Fairburn

Maps have evolved to portray stories of exploration, power, mythology and artistry. From the earliest representations of the flat world to the vast boastings of empires, maps have shaped our understanding of our history, and formed our opinions on 'us' and 'them'.

Maps can tell more about the people behind them than the places themselves. Do maps really exert any power or influence on their viewers, or have we become savvy to their falsified facts and representation of data?

Aidan is a textile designer interested in exploring heritage through craft, design and art. The world of maps has always held a fascination for her - and created the basis for her final year dissertation.

In partnership with Cafe Scientifique

OCT 10

Free admission but donations welcome. Refreshments available.

Crossing borders

How much of a song and dance??

Headingley Library, North Lane / 7pm

Join us for an evening of celebration in song, and a discussion on the influence and impact of crossing borders into the UK and Yorkshire. Including:

Asmarina Voices

Local refugee choir with links to Headingley Voices will introduce the evening with some of their favourite songs.

Crossing into Yorkshire: opportunities and challenges

Dave Brown, Head of Migration Yorkshire

Migration Yorkshire is a local authority-led regional migration partnership, working to ensure that Yorkshire and Humber can deal with, and benefit from, migration.

Dave will talk about the impact of migration on localities including Headingley.

Migration Yorkshire

Strategic leadership, local support

No Wiser

A local a capella trio will finish the evening with a short performance of songs.

In partnership with Leeds Library Services

The Headingley Festival of Ideas is all about creative ideas which may not necessarily lead to something - although some might - but the main purpose is to tap into the joy of ideas, debate and discussion. We aim to appeal to the wide variety of people in Headingley and beyond, and to all age groups.
